ETHN 154. History of Mexican America
David Gutierrez

This course explores the history of the largest minority population in the United States, focusing on the legacies of the Mexican War, the history of Mexican immigration and U.S.-Mexican relations, and the struggle for citizenship and civil rights. (Cross-listed with HIUS 113.)

ETHN 155. U.S. Militarism
Yen Espiritu

In this course, we will consider rationales for and responses to American military expansion as well as its social, environmental and cultural consequences. While it is impossible to provide comprehensive coverage of all U.S. wars across space and time, the course takes a theoretically integrated approach by linking U.S. militarism with capitalism, colonialism and patriarchy. Conceptualizing militarization as an extension of colonialism, we will examine how contemporary forms of militarization are informed by past and ongoing effects of colonial subordination, and how demilitarization efforts constitute a crucial part of larger decolonization movements. Since gender and racial ideologies are an integral component of war and militarization, we will pay particular attention to the critiques of and alternatives to militarized worlds waged by indigenous, people of color, and feminist coalitions.

ETHN 159. Topics/African American History
Jessica Lynn Graham

A colloquium dealing with special topics in the history of people of African descent in the United States. Themes will vary from quarter to quarter. Requirements will vary for undergraduate, MA, and PhD students. Graduate students will be required to submit a more substantial piece of work. (Cross-listed with HIUS 183.)

ETHN 178. Blues: An Oral Tradition
Staff

This course will examine the development of the Blues from its roots in work-songs and the minstrel show to its flowering in the Mississippi Delta to the development of Urban blues and the close relationship of the Blues with Jazz, Rhythm and Blues, and Rock and Roll. (Cross-listed with MUS 126).
